THIRTY-SECOND YEAR NO. 28.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1909.

PRICE $1.00 A YEAR.

CALLED TO HIS ETERNAL HOME.

This community was shocked last Saturday morning when the announcement of the sudden death of Rev. French O. Ross was made known.

Rev. Ross was formerly pastor of the United Presbyterian church here but of late had been preaching in Delancy, N. Y., to which place he had received a call. He was on his homeward journey when he purchased some ham sandwiches at a restaurant along the route. On Tuesday morning he was unable to get breakfast and ate one of the sandwiches purchased the evening previous. About two hours later he was taken suddenly ill but continued on his journey without medical aid and arrived in Xenia Wednesday morning. Upon arriving at his home he was given medical aid but was regarded in a serious condition suffering with pneumonia. Thursday evening he was thought to be improved and his death at one o'clock Saturday morning proved a great shock to his family and friends.

On Thursday he not being able to write the acceptance to his call, Cedarville from Richmond, Kan., his first call. After his local pastorate he went to Washington, Iowa, and later to Jansville, Wis., where his health failed and he moved to Xenia about one year ago. The Board of Trustees of the Seminary appointed him caretaker of the building and he and his family had temporary quarters in the building. Since coming to Xenia his health greatly improved and he went East the first of May where he has been preaching in Delancy.

The deceased was married to Miss Nannie Rambo of Richmond, Kan., and with her, one son, Merle, aged nine, survives. His aged mother also survives, she having made her home with her son for several years. He was born in 1857 near Kenton, Ohio, and was 52 years of age. He attended Monmouth college and graduated from the Xenia Seminary in 1893.

Rev. Ross was one of the best pulpit orators in the denomination and was a wide reader on all standard works. He possessed a large private library and was always taking up new studies. During his pastorate here he became prominent not only in church affairs but in civic advancement as well. He was of a strong determined disposition and soon wielded an influence over his congregation and the community. His work in the congregation has left a lasting impression on the members.

Herald readers will recall the extensive history of the local church as compiled by Rev. Ross. It was published in these columns and was read with much interest not only by the members of his immediate congregation but by the citizens in general. Rev. Ross' faculty for handling historical subjects enabled him to give as complete and correct history as it was possible for one to give who came into the community a stranger.

The funeral services were held Tuesday at 10 o'clock from the Second United Presbyterian church in Xenia, conducted by Dr. J. B. Webster of the Seminary. Dr. Henderson of Bellbrook, pastor at Kenton during the boyhood days of the deceased, assisted. Dr. James Harper of W. G. Moorehead, Dr. Joseph Kyle and Dr. Jesse Johnson each took part.

Dr. Webster took his text from John 13:7, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." He dwelt on the mysterious ways of God, which removed from the church an able minister as he was about to enter a new field in which to labor for Christ. Dr. Henderson spoke of his associations with Mr. Ross through many years, and Dr. Harper also talked of the life and work of the deceased. Each dwelt on the worth of Mr. Ross as a student, scholar and worker, and of the fact of his complete knowledge of the history of the United Presbyterian church. The deceased minister was a well known collector of books, and possessed one of the most complete private libraries in the city.

Dr. Moorehead read the Scriptural lesson and led in prayer. Dr. Kyle made the closing prayer and Dr. Johnson announced the Psalms. The choir of the church rendered beautifully the Twenty-Third and One Hundred and Third Psalms.

The floral tributes are very beautiful, and they came from congregations the dead minister had served, church societies and personal friends.

The body was laid to rest in Woodland cemetery, and the pallbearers were members of the United Presbyterian church in Cedarville. They were: Dr. M. I. Marsh, W. J. Tarbox, F. P. Hastings, R. B. Barber, G. J. Gobe and R. C. Watt.

Relatives and friends from a distance who attended the services were: William M. Rambo, Chicago; J. P. Rambo, Kansas City; Andrew Dodds, William Dodds and Ross Shafer, Bell Center; J. P. Dodds, Kenton.

CEDARVILLE COL- LEGE REMEMBERED.

Mr. W. J. McCallister for long years a friend of Dr. McKinney and a member of the 3rd R. P. church, Philadelphia, Pa., of which Rev. C. A. Young is pastor, dying recently, bequeathed $2,000 to the endowment fund of Cedarville College. This brings the endowment up to $30,000.

The outlook for attendance at Cedarville College next fall is better than it has ever been in its history. Already extensive preparations are being made for a record breaking year. The old chemical laboratory has been abandoned and a new one twice as large as the old one is being fitted and stocked up at an expense of several hundred dollars. Two new professors have been added to the faculty. New courses of instruction with an elective group of study are being prepared. The preparatory course has been lengthened to four years. Graduates in it will receive diplomas. A course and a year's residence work leading to the degree of Master of Arts, is offered and several have enrolled in it. Cedarville College is entering upon a new and larger career with bright hopes and high enthusiasm.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DESCRIPTION OF CLIFTON CLIFFS.

As one hears Clifton, coming in on the Cedarville pike, the first view of the picturesque Little Miami river is gained at the spot where a dam has been constructed to furnish power for the small electric light plant at that place.

The bridge across the river is not over forty-five feet in length, and at this point the solid rock to the depth of nearly sixty feet. The surrounding country is almost as level as a floor, and this sheer drop is indeed a surprise. A ledge of limestone crops out under the little village. This rock is of a most peculiar formation, and is rather porous. Under, or through this stone may be found plenty of sandstone and good building stone, and it is through this formation that the waters of Little Miami have for centuries tumbled and tossed in their mad rush to reach the Father of Waters. This has resulted in a mighty gorge being cut into the rock, with straight walled cliffs from whose crevices scraggy cedars jut out a fight for a foot hold.

The narrow ravine or gorge widens further down stream until the great over hanging cliffs are some three hundred feet apart. At this point there was once a large paper mill, but nothing remains of it today but the old restraining walls and marks in the cliffs where the dam was constructed. All up and down the gorge the wild broken scenery is grand. Words fail to describe it, and one must pay the spot a visit to fully appreciate the many wonders. The "icehouse" rock is one of the odd attractions, and is a great section of the adjoining cliff that has tumbled into the river and now stands edgewise, as if defying the troubled waters.

The site of the old paper mill will some day be changed, and a great dam constructed across the chasm, and the waters of the Little Miami will furnish light for all surrounding cities and are powerful enough to furnish motive power for a fifty mile traction line. This dam is and then the bridge spanning the death at the stake, and him on "Better" he murmured, "to die on the bed of the Miami than at the stake."

A spot of more than ordinary interest is where the famous Indian fighter, Darnell, leaped across the chasm to safety. The falls spoken of in the narrative following have been cut down to a roaring rapids. Darnell was a companion of Daniel Boone, Simon Girty and Simon Kenton, and had just made his escape from the Indians who had taken him captive. The interesting story of Darnell's daring leap for life, as handed down by tradition is told as follows:

"It will be remembered by students of history that in the year 1778, during the Revolution, Daniel Boone, with twenty-seven others was taken prisoner in Kentucky and brought to Old Chillicothe, as is the Shawnee call it. Through the influence of Hamilton, the British Governor, Boone with ten of his party, was taken to Detroit, while the remaining seventeen prisoners were left with their savage captors. Among the latter number was a man whose name was supposed to have been Darnell. Brave as a lion and cunning as a fox, he resolved to try and effect his escape. One night, how, it is not for us to say, he found himself in a woods north-west of Clifton. Beneath the branches of a monarch of the forest he paused to recruit his strength when daylight suddenly burst upon him. Not seeming to comprehend his dangerous situation, he did not move but coolly took a piece of pemican from his pouch and began to devour it. He was not unmindful for he had stolen his rifle from his captors. The pemican had scarcely been devoured when a noise occasioned by the breaking of a twig assailed his ears. His backwoods training at once told him that a human foot had broken the twig, and in an instant he was on his feet. Turning and looking in the direction of the noise he saw several Indians hide themselves behind the trees. He knew them to be Shawnees and therefore his bitterest enemies. What should he do? The redskins were in his very path and to try to get beyond them was to court death by their tomahawks or the terrible stake. Flight seemed the only alternative—flight in a direction opposite to the course he had marked out.

The savages remained behind the trees, intensely watching the white man's movement. They could have brought him down with a bullet, but such was not their intention. They wanted him to die by fire in their village. For a minute he survived his perilous situation and then tightened his buckskin belt he wore "I will run," he said, "and if they catch me they will starve me well." He was no mean runner, and no sooner had he started than the Indians started in swift pursuit. The prisoner lay toward the gorge through which the Shawnees had taken him. Suddenly he was off and quickened his pace for the savages were close upon him. He had miscalculated their speed and endurance and would soon overtake him. Presently he veered still farther to the left. His present course led to the falls, and the Shawnees sent their best runners after him. But he did not present path far, he ran straight for the falls, which he had seen before. He stood near the edge of the short distance below. Suddenly he lay direct in his path. The hunter looked on in all. "I believe I can drop him," he muttered the hunter examined the printing of the priming was in perfect condition and he suddenly passed which stood on the leading from Clifton to Yellow Springs. He boldly faced the pursuers and threw his rifle to his shoulder. He saw the weapon directed toward his breast and he shut himself behind a tree. But alas, he was too late, for the Shawnees had cracked the valuable shaft. The effect of his shot, by load, for with hidden remaining five had dare to average the death of the town Thursday calling on a few friends. Mr. Rambo was a former student of the college and left here nine years ago. He is at present engaged in the jewelry business and is meeting with good success. At present he is considerably interested in the high water situation, in that his town is in the flooded district.

Mrs. Elmer Shull died at her home about 2 o'clock Thursday morning after suffering with cancer for three years. She was 62 years of age and leaves a husband, two daughters and one son. The deceased was married to Elmer Shull at Sacramento, Neb., in 1888. Three brothers and three sisters live in that state. The funeral services will be conducted from the home on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. W. E. Fitt. Burial at the cemetery north of town.

The village of Yellow Springs voted by a large majority last Saturday to have electric lights. The vote stood 148 to 11. It is expected that the village will ask the companies in Springfield, Xenia and Cedarville for bids on furnishing the power. The contract will be let to the lowest bidder and the village will then sell the current to the consumers. In this way it is thought that a handsome profit can be realized for the town. Mayor Kiddway has stated that George Drake, P. M. Stewart and J. N.
Wolcott will be the committee to supervise the installing of the plant.

Ralph and George Gordon sons of Frank Gordon, of Cincinnati left home last Saturday morning and started to Cedarville where their grandmother, Mrs. John Stone lives. The boys had been sent to purchase some meat but took the money and paid a street car fare to Linwood where they boarded a freight train. The lads were captured near Morrow and held. They claimed that the weather was too hot in Cincinnati. The Herald received a telegram from the Cincinnati Post Saturday notifying us of the runaways but they were captured by E. A. Findlay of the Morrow Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Finney arrived here last Saturday evening after a short wedding trip. They had planned a late arrival thinking that they might escape any celebration that night. But such was not the case. Some of their friends had gained the information that they would be home late that night and a number remained around the Finney Hotel to give them a royal welcome, and they received all that was coming to them for it was well on to morning before there was quiet. Mr. and Mrs. Finney will be "At Home" to their friends after July 15. They will reside in the Crawford property that was to have been taken by Mr. S. W. Smith.
Mr. and Mrs. Finney will leave about the first of October for Los Angeles, Cal., where they expect to spend the winter.
